CASE STUDY

ETI Ltd

Supporting a local business to go global while saving the planet

From its site in East Worthing, ETI Ltd makes and sells products across the world. Thanks to the partnership with Adur & Worthing Councils, it can focus on growing its business, knowing that their waste is dealt with in a green and legally-compliant way.

With three sites across Worthing, ETI Ltd is one of the area's big business success stories.

Jointly owned by Miriam and Peter Webb, the company was founded in 1983 when they identified an opportunity to manufacture digital thermometer probes for the food industry.

They now have more than 170 staff, sell their products across the globe and have received a number of national innovation awards.

Throughout that time, one thing has remained constant - their waste collection partner.

Adur & Worthing Councils are proud to have supported this local firm as it has developed and grown.

Our service is cheaper, greener and more trusted than competitors - providing a top-quality offer with no hidden costs along with a guarantee that ETI meets all of its legal obligations when disposing of waste.

Recycling is, and will continue to be, an essential part of our waste management strategy and this service will help us to meet our environmental objectives and reduce our associated costs at the same time.

Debbie Bulled, ETI Ltd

One of the biggest issues facing all organisations, large and small, is how to protect the environment. This is particularly important when it comes to waste.

Adur & Worthing Councils take sustainability extremely seriously which is why we do everything possible to work with organisations to help them reduce their carbon footprint.

By offering a dedicated recycling service with clearly labelled containers, ETI has been able to hugely reduce the amount of waste that previously went to landfill.

This has also helped the company cut costs, with our recycling service costing up to 40% less than general waste equivalents.

And as our fleet is locally-based and all routes optimised, the amount of carbon emissions associated with collections is always kept to a minimum.

Adur & Worthing Councils continue to work closely with the firm to support all of their evolving needs which ensures waste will continue to be dealt with in a green and legally-responsible way.
