

Shoreham Remembers Book of condolence

This book of condolence holds the messages of support submitted from around the world following the tragedy at the Shoreham Airshow on Saturday 22nd August 2015.

Our thoughts are with all those affected.

This sad event will affect all of us within the local community and those farther afield for some time to come.

The online book of condolence closed to new entries on 27th November 2015, but this document has been created to view as part of the permanent record.

My thoughts will always remain about those innocent people who lost their lives in this very tragic accident..may they Rest in Peace...

Gerald White on November 27, 2015 at 8:34 am

I was born in a house under the centre line of the grass runway SE/NE and for seventy five years or more aircraft flew right over our house in Connaught Avenue..there was never any thought of damage being caused. So...it came as a tragic surprise as I saw, the accident, and resulting deaths, and Injuries, to innocent people,just going about their business. My thoughts of them is always going to be with me, and how Sorry I feel is one of being very respectful. My condolences are sent to all families concerned...Also many have to carry a burden of concern...having organised the Airshow...I sincerely hope, they feel no guilt...and the passage of time will lessen any pain felt..by every one who cares....

My Wife and myself were by the river that day. From no more than 500 metres away, we watched the Hunter as it flew around us and into the loop that still haunts us in quiet moments. I hope the families that suffered and lost so much on that day know they are not forgotten, that their loved ones cannot have suffered and that they will be remembered. I also hope that the Pilot can find peace; I saw him rolling away from the road, if only to no avail. Whatever caused this awful tragedy, there was bravery and courage. We couldn't help, we could only get out of the way – others were closer. We also saw the fire tenders from surrounding towns driving at full speed on country lanes to get to the scene; the finest human behaviour in the worst of times. May they Rest in Peace and Love to those they have left behind.

Cllr David Watts Mayor of Polegate on October 16, 2015 at 12:08 pm

My thoughts and the thoughts of many in the Town of Polegate send their sincere condolences to all those involved in the Air Crash at Shoreham. One of the worst incidents of it's kind, the terrible and tragic loss of life cannot be described. The emergency services also need to be praised for their efforts in extreme circumstances. Our thoughts and prayers go to all those who have lost loved ones. Cllr David Watts, Mayor Of Polegate

My sincere condolences to the families and friends of all those who lost their lives in the dreadful events of 22/08/2015 at the Shoreham Air Show. May they Rest in Peace and may those that they left behind find peace of mind xxxx When I visited the Old Toll Bridge to lay my flowers in their memory I was touched by how the extended community was showing their support and respect, something which will continue.

In loving memory of all of the victims of the Shoreham Airshow tragedy on 22.8.15, you will never, ever be forgotten. I & my family witnessed this terrible tragedy & it is forever stamped on my memory, we are all so aware that it could so easily have been us but for a couple of seconds. My heart & thoughts go out to all of the victims & their poor families & friends, my thoughts are with you all & I pray every night that God will bless you & help you at this terrible time. It was so unfair, so sudden & so terribly sad. God must have needed these eleven new angels very badly & he is looking after them now. God Bless them all. xx

*My thoughts are with all those affected, both directly and indirectly. I have been going to Shoreham airport since I was very young, and having been educated at Lancing College it always felt like "my" air show. Now living in Somerset this year was the first time I had persuaded my 2 daughters to come with me to an air show, and it was a great shock to us all.
Condolences to all the families and friends. Jon*

I witnessed this terrible accident and I would like to extend my deepest condolences to all those families who have lost loved ones. I think also of those who were injured and those traumatised by what they saw. At the age of 6 my father was going to take me to the Farnborough Air Show on the day that John Derry and his navigator were killed in the D.H.110 crash. My father was persuaded to work on that Saturday, but his friend Ron decided to go. Tragically he was one of the 29 killed on that day.

Our hearts go out to the family and friends of loved ones who so tragically lost their lives at Shoreham on what was a lovely summers day until the awful crash which has affected so many. My daughter and I went to the Bridge of Flowers today, both to place flowers ourselves and to pay our respects to those lost. It was a very sad place but also heartwarming to see memories and pictures of happy times, and also to see how far reaching this tragedy has gone. No words can change what has happened but I hope the families and friends take comfort from the messages of sympathy and love from so many. We also are thinking of the pilot and his family, and all the emergency services who responded that day, you are all in our thoughts.

In our hearts and thoughts, RIP xxx

This is such a tragic loss for so many and a shock for others who witnessed it and have been dealing with the aftermath. I just wanted to say how sad my family feel about what has happened and wish that all those who have lost loved ones and friends and those who witnessed or have worked with families or at the scene can find peace in the future. May we always remember the 11 who have passed and support those who remain and are in pain. We have lit candles and said prayers for you all. May you RIP Shoreham 11 x x x x

We are all too accustomed to seeing tragic events reported but sometimes, even if we are not directly affected, a particular event will be especially saddening. Such was the accident at Shoreham. A beautiful day, a happy event suddenly turned into horror. As someone who has had both a lifetime of enthusiasm for aviation and a career that often deals with tragedy, I feel touched by many sides of this accident. I offer deepest sympathies to those who have lost loved ones, fortitude to the injured, thanks to the emergency responders and support for those who will meticulously investigate. May those who have died rest in peace.

Esther on August 30, 2015 at 3:15 pm

My heartfelt sympathies to everyone affected by this awful incident, most especially to those who have lost loved ones. You remain constantly in my thoughts and in my prayers – I feel your pain so much yet I know I can't really even begin to imagine it. I am praying for you all for strength and peace at this time and in the days ahead. I pray that your precious memories of those you love will bring you joy and comfort. Much love to you all x

My Condolences to those people who Died in the Shoreham air display, an air show supporter

The Thomas family on August 29, 2015 at 11:36 pm

My husband has been unfortunate enough to witness several flying accidents – but this one has affected him the most, and he could not face tonight's Bridge of Light act of remembrance in Shoreham. So my son and I went – on his behalf, our own, and that of other family members still too upset to feel able to go. As we drove into Shoreham, it seemed that from every single road we passed came people of all ages – united in grief, and all heading in the same direction. It is our hope that everyone who is grieving can find comfort from the sheer numbers and the sincerity of the people who came to pay their respects. Our thoughts remain with those who died, those who love them, the poor pilot and his family whose anguish is unimaginable – and with everyone who has been affected by this horrendous tragedy. We salute the community of Shoreham for their strength, dignity and reverence – we will never forget what we took part in tonight.

Although I wasn't there on Saturday 22nd August and don't know any of the victims of this terrible crash, I have been deeply shocked and saddened by events. My relatives used to run a business in Shoreham and still live only a few miles away inland. On a recent visit this summer, I had walked along the river and cycle path to reach their village rather than take the bus. Such a beautiful, tranquil scene at that time of morning. Who would have imagined that this scene could be shattered just one month later when the air crash took place? My heart goes out to the eleven victims of this crash. It strikes me just how damn unlucky they were, the chances of losing their lives in this way must have been minute. They were just ordinary, decent human beings going about their business. My deepest sympathy to the families and friends of all who have died. Let's hope that pilot Andy Hill pulls through, he is still critically injured. Let's think too of all those who witnessed the crash or were involved in it but survived, I imagine they will be in a state of shock for a long time and will need much help and support. And we must not forget the brave men and women of the emergency services who raced to the scene, they too must be traumatised by what they have had to see in the line of duty. We should never take them for granted. I have been very impressed by the way the people of Shoreham and the nearby towns have rallied round at this difficult time, you obviously have a good, strong community.

All of us here at Summersdale Garage wish to offer deepest condolences to all personally affected by this tragedy. Life is so fragile and we hope those grieving for lost loved ones, friends and colleagues (all of whom were taken from them too soon) are comforted by the lovely messages of Condolence left on this online book. We hope and pray those injured make a full recovery. Some of our customers, collecting their newspapers, were moved so much by what they saw on the front pages that they could not speak about the awful tragedy. Enjoy the memories that remain, don't let them fade, they will hold your hand through this dreadful period. God bless. x

Thinking of all those effected by last weeks terrible accident.

Caro on August 28, 2015 at 6:59 pm

I just can't imagine what people affected by this accident are going through, but I extend my love and sympathy to you all. To the friends and families of victims, to the survivors, the witnesses, and also to the hardworking people from various organisations who have been working unbelievably hard in the wake of this tragedy: I hope you all find strength and peace to get you through this, and hope that anyone affected by the incident seeks out support to help them cope. No one should deal with this alone, and this community's response so far shows that no one -will- cope with this alone.

Some words of solace by the poet Edwin Arlington Robinson:

___A Happy Man___

*When these graven lines you see,
Traveller, do not pity me;
Though I be among the dead,
Let no mournful word be said.*

*Children that I leave behind,
And their children, all were kind;
Near to them and to my wife,
I was happy all my life.*

*My three sons I married right,
And their sons I rocked at night;
Death nor sorrow never brought
Cause for one unhappy thought.*

*Now, and with no need of tears,
Here they leave me, full of years,—
Leave me to my quiet rest
In the region of the blest.*

*There is never a right time for families to say goodbye to someone they love, but it's not just families that are suffering, it's the whole community. No words can describe the pain and numbness of the whole of shoreham and lancing and what this terrible devastation has caused. But for the 11 people who have tragically passed away, I will say this, you'll never ever be forgotten. May you rest in everlasting peace and continue to make people smile in heaven. I'm so sorry for all those whom have lost someone special. We all pray for you.
Rest in peace the shoreham 11 ♥ Xxxxx*

Deepest condolences and thoughts to all who were involved in this Shocking incident

Sally Lee on August 28, 2015 at 3:45 pm

It is with deepest sorrow that I write this. Such a sad event and shock to everyone. This is not something one expects on what should be a happy family event. Things were seen that shouldnt have been seen and people were lost that should still be here. Nothing will take away the pain and sorrow that has been felt, but people have come together to recognise your pain. May you find comfort and support from all who offer it.

Janet on August 28, 2015 at 3:44 pm

Words cannot express the sadness that we all feel, both my husband and son fly from Shoreham, this was such a tragedy, my heart goes out to all those who lost members of their families xx

Peter Russell on August 28, 2015 at 3:21 pm

My sincere thoughts of great sorrow and sadness, sent to comfort those in the Adur Community, many of whom I knew well when I served at the Shoreham Fire Station in 70's and later at Shoreham Airport on its Fire Department. My former career in Fleet Air Arm at Ford, when it was RN Airfield brought me directly into such scenarios there, and it all came back to me on that fateful day in Shoreham. Many thanks to the leadership of Roy Barraclough and the Fire Brigades crews attending, for their dedicated attention to the onerous duties thrust upon them that day. May God Bless all those suffering the consequences of that terrible accident, however experienced.

Kim, Andy & Lee on August 28, 2015 at 3:17 pm

We were there and witnessed this terrible accident, words can never say how we feel, our thoughts and prayers go out to all those people that died and to all those still waiting for answers. Craig Burgess on August 28, 2015 at 2:54 pm

I was at the airport with a team of police officers for the air show, we were having a good day interacting with members of the public for what is a family event. I saw the Hunter go up into a perfect blue sky, 10 seconds later everything had changed. My colleagues and I rushed to the scene but there was little that we could do. I have not been able to think about anything else since this terrible incident. My thoughts and prayers are with the families affected and to the wider community who are struggling to come to terms with this shattering event.

Maria Dorricott on August 28, 2015 at 2:31 pm

I was at the show and at the time and saw the crash, unaware of the tragic loss of lives, little warning they would have had. My thoughts go to all the families of the fallen and all the people that witnessed this incident, those like myself who are thinking about it everyday and probably for many years to come. The families have a much harder job to deal with and my condolences go to them all.

Jo Burchell-Collins on August 28, 2015 at 10:00 am

I was watching the airshow with my Dad from the footbridge. It was a beautiful, sunny day and there was an air of excitement amongst the crowd, especially for the much anticipated last flight of the Vulcan. We then watched in horror as the Hunter came down behind the trees, in a massive fireball of flames and smoke. Suddenly the atmosphere changed completely. I am so sorry for the tragic, random loss of life and send my sincere condolences to all those who have lost family and friends.

Lea on August 28, 2015 at 9:58 am

I was watching the Airshow with my family at Shoreham Beach and saw the incident. It was hard to believe what had happened at first but totally saddened when the news of lost lives came through. Hard also when finding out it involved someone I knew, a brother of my husbands friend and team mate. I had met Matthew on occasions and he was a lovely lad and kind hearted. Such a loss, as is all the victims. Our love and support goes out to brother Paul and his family. We are here for you if you need us at this tragic time. God bless xxx

My deepest sympathy go to all the love ones and friends of those who lost their lives that day. Having been in the business for the best part of 50 years and flown in a Hunter Tbird this accident is extremely close to my heart. Let's pray that those survivors, some with horrific injuries, including the pilot, make a full recovery.

Andrea Gatehouse on August 27, 2015 at 11:53 pm

*I was at the Air show on that beautiful summers day. Not for one moment did I imagine the horror I would feel from witnessing that plane go down. I replay it over and over in my mind. At the time I thought I'd just witnessed a Pilot die. Little did I know it was far far worse than I had at first thought. I had in fact just witnessed the death of several innocent people. News of the whole tragic turn of events filtered through.....I have cried so many times since for every soul lost that day and for the families and friends left behind. I intend to visit the bridge of flowers to pay my respects on this Saturday coming and try to come to terms with what I and many others witnessed.
Rest in Peace...I'm so so sorry. ☹*

I lived in Shoreham, but now live 2,000 miles away. That distance however became 0 miles on hearing Shorehams incredibly sad news. My heart truly goes out to everyone in Shoreham. Knowing how saddend I have been even though I live so far away makes me think it must be simply unbearable for you Shoreham residents. Made my heart rejoice at the same time hearing how the community is pulling together. You go Shoreham, the World needs more communities like yours. You are doing yourselves, the victims and their families proud x

Steve & Julie Mullis on August 27, 2015 at 9:20 pm

There are times in our lives when people are lost for words. This is one of those times. No words can describe the pain & anger you must all now feel. Why? What if? The answers may never come but you can be sure that the rest of the country feels your pain. In time there will, hopefully, be answers. They will not change the result but hopefully they will help soften the feeling of loss & pain. Think now of those left behind but never forget taken before their time. RIP

*"Don't worry about the future. Or worry, but know that worrying is as effective as trying to solve an algebra equation by chewing bubble gum. The real troubles in your life are apt to be things that never crossed your worried mind, the kind that blindsides you at 4 p.m. on some idle Tuesday." I hope your tragic loss can at least be a light to those that worry to much to realise how lucky they are to simply "be". Smile more, laugh more, love more and remember those that can no longer.
Rest in peace*

*My thoughts go out to all affected by this tragedy. I witnessed this horrific accident from the spectator's area and as a pilot myself felt physically sick at what happened. I will always have to answer the upsetting questions about it raised by my innocent 4 year old son who like everyone else wanted to have a happy time watching the aeroplanes. No one should ever have to witness that first-hand and my thoughts are with the families of those dead and those emotionally affected.

Our prayers reach out to those lost, their families and friends, those who saw the crash and are traumatised and the members of the emergency services working so hard to identify victims. Staff giving up their free time to help those affected, the people of Shoreham pulling together to provide food and drink for those working in appalling weather and providing clean dry socks. You are all amazing.

Christopher J Carson on August 27, 2015 at 12:15 am

All our Love and prayers at this time, from the Parishes of Kilmegan and Maghera.

*Such devastating loss of life of those who have still go so much to share with the world.
Rest in Peace sweet angels... I found this on Jilchristy Dee's Website, though that I would share and I hope it helps just a little with the pain xxx*

*"We didn't get to say goodbye
We're devastated that you're gone
We'd've done anything to keep you here with us
Right here where you belong*

*We didn't know that life would take
Such an unexpected path
That you'd be separated from us so soon
Heartbreaking reality we struggle to grasp*

*And bitter though our losing you has been
And so profound is the pain that we bear
We're sadder still at no chance for goodbye
No final expression of our deep love and care*

*Yet believing that you're not too far away
That your Spirit still lingers quite near We'll say our goodbyes in our words and our thoughts..."*

As a pilot(of sorts)I can understand the views and arguments surrounding this incident from all sides. But one thing is certain and that is that first and foremost our thoughts must be for the innocent victims of this terrible tragedy, people with no interest in aircraft, going about their day. Lads on the way to a match, chauffeur picking up newly weds – whatever. I was at the seaside airshow at Dawlish that afternoon and heard the news on the radio on the way home. My sincerest condolences to the families of those that perished. And finally, a word of thanks to all the emergency services who I have no doubt that as always did an exceptional job above and beyond what they should ever have to encounter.

Susan and Terry Kennard on August 26, 2015 at 5:16 pm

Our heartfelt sympathies to all the families affected by the Shoreham air crash on Saturday. Like many, we were there just 15 minutes before the plane came down and we count our blessings for someone looking over us. We had set out for an afternoon up on the downs overlooking the airfield to get the best view of the air show. The tragic events have changed a lot of lives. Not a day has gone by when we have not thought of the families affected. To those that have lost loved ones, our thoughts are with you now and in the months ahead as you come to terms with your losses. Gone but never forgotten.

Dawn Jones on August 26, 2015 at 5:15 pm

Annabel Pritchard on August 26, 2015 at 5:12 pm

I live in Mid Sussex (so thank goodness not down the road from where this happened) and on the afternoon of last Saturday was enjoying the sunshine with my family when I saw a private plane flying above. Knowing that the show was running, I joked about the plane being part of it. No way would I have ever made such a comment if I had known about the tragedy which had occurred about one and a half hours earlier. So much sympathy for those who have lost their loved ones/friends. The last thing these poor people, who were going about their Saturday afternoon business, should have had to worry about was a plane performing a disastrous loop de loop above them. Bless them. Andy Hill must have been devastated when he saw what was happening. Wish him well. The angels are now taking good care of them. Just hope they didn't suffer. Could have been any of us. RIP.

Robert McGivern on August 26, 2015 at 5:12 pm

Our thoughts are with the victims' families, in the wake of this unfortunate tragedy—also the injured, including the pilot, Andy Hill.

Alan Owen on August 26, 2015 at 4:10 pm

*The airshow has yearly been a fixture in my family's life since we moved to Shoreham in 2008, and this event in the year has historically been a high point; a time to look back on the year with extended family and friends, to revel in human ingenuity, engineering and capability. This year's tragedy has shattered that joy. Deepest condolences are due to all who lost their lives, and also to those who are affected negatively in all other ways by this tragedy. I expect there are countless families whom have shared happy days at the airshow in the past, and whom are hurting now, like I, for sentimental reasons, as well as in mourning for those who died. I only hope that the solidity shown by our community holds fast, and that we can remember those who were involved always with respect. I also hope that come next year's airshow, lessons have been learned such that the fixture can take place renewed, delivering joy and spirit as it has in years gone by.
With deepest respect.*

Regina Lankreijer on August 26, 2015 at 3:12 pm

We (a Dutch family) were on holiday in Shoreham a few weeks ago and had a great time in this lovely town in West Sussex. So we were very shocked to hear and see about the accident and can't express what we felt. Every day we watch the BBC South East Today and it is heartbreaking to see this lovely town in mourning on the telly -day in day out-. We wish everybody a lot of strength. Our deepest condolences.

Peter Stokes on August 26, 2015 at 3:10 pm

My thoughts go out to all of the families and friends of those that lost their life at the Shoreham Air Disaster. Nothing can prepare anyone for the sudden and violent loss that they have suffered. I cannot stop thinking about how a day of joy to celebrate those wonderful old aircraft and a day of fun suddenly turned to one of unimaginable horror. May those that lost their lives rest in peace, may those that are left behind find some peace in the love of our community.

Laura on August 26, 2015 at 3:10 pm

This tragic event has changed us all forever. Those we have lost will forever be missed by their loved ones and forever remembered by the whole community. Those that were at the scene will forever be haunted by the tragic event and those that are left will forever offer our support. We are a town where everyone knows everyone and this tragedy will change us forever. In time we may move on but we will NEVER EVER forget. Forever in our hearts the Shoreham 11 x

David Few on August 26, 2015 at 3:08 pm

My family and I were at the airshow and witnessed the crash, which shook and saddened us all. It was only later that the full horror of that terrible moment became known. We would like to offer our sincere condolences to those who have lost love ones and also those who experienced first hand the aftermath.

Annette on August 26, 2015 at 3:07 pm

The tragic events and the loss it has caused are un imaginable, our thoughts and prayer are with family, friends, victims, witnesses and those that helped. Nothing will ever be the same again and no words can comfort those left to pick up the pieces. Rest in peace

Amy on August 26, 2015 at 3:05 pm

Sending my heartfelt sympathies to the loved ones of those lost in this deeply sorrowing and tragic accident, may you find bravery and strength during this darkest time. The utmost respect and thanks to our heroes in the emergency services.

Amy Strevens on August 26, 2015 at 3:00 pm

Words cannot even begin to make up for the pain that this horrific crash has caused for our local community, and I am sure everyone is still in shock. What was supposed to be a happy day for all has turned into one of mourning for not just the 11 people that have passed, but the thousands who will have the image of the crash inscribed in their memories for years to come. My heart aches for the family and friends of those who have lost their lives, and I cannot even begin to imagine what they are going through. Let us all come together as a community and remember these people who have been cruelly taken from us.

We send our sincere and heartfelt condolences to the victims and relatives of all involved in the Shoreham air disaster. Such a tragic accident and terrible twist of fate. We hope the tributes paid provide some comfort at this terrible time, and send our thoughts to all those still waiting to hear the fate of their loved ones as well as those injured. Our thoughts also to those who witnessed this and the emergency services involved – it must be truly harrowing for them and we thank you for your courage in difficult circumstances. May you all find peace in the days, months and years ahead.

Debbie on August 26, 2015 at 2:30 pm

Although I have no personal connection to this tragedy, other than having been there last year and seen the Hawker Hunter, I am utterly shocked by this event, and like many people, it has not been far from my mind in the last few days. To those who have lost loved ones, hold on to the memories you carry with you. It will help you in time. And to those who were first on the scene, I can't begin to imagine how hard this has been. You are all in my thoughts at this time. God bless you all.

My thoughts go out to all those involved and affected by the terrible incident on Saturday 22nd August 2015. I can't even begin to imagine what it was like being there. This terrible accident is so close to home for me and has affected us all as a community. Indirectly I know of the poor people whose lives have been cut short and I would imagine all of us are linked in one way or another. It could of been me and a friend involved that day as we were planning to travel along this stretch of road but we were delayed. Our emergency services have had to face things that nobody should and we can't thank them enough.

My heart goes out to all the people concerned. Such a sad and devastating time.*

Stuart White on August 26, 2015 at 1:14 pm

Enormous heartfelt condolences to all the victims and their families after Saturday's cruelest tragedy. I was brought up in Shoreham and know that part of the town so well from childhood and then later using all the roads at that junction either on bike, moped or in a car. It's this ordinariness and everyday-ness of what those utterly innocent people using the A27 on Saturday to just travel on an absolutely ordinary day that makes this tragedy all the more cruel and very hard to comprehend. My thoughts are also with the town, it's residents, those who witnessed the tragedy along with the emergency and support services now dealing with the aftermath.

Sam Rosam on August 26, 2015 at 1:14 pm

Thinking of all those who have been affected by this terrible accident. My hope is that all those grieving will take comfort knowing that the community stands beside them holding their hands. To those who tragically lost their lives I wish you peace. God Bless

Heartbroken for everyone touched by this terrible tragedy. We visit Shoreham and Lancing several times weekly for football matches and training and were there just an hour before watching the planes doing their amazing stunts. Who knew what was about to unfold just minutes later. Sympathy and prayers to all those grieving, trying to carry on and those supporting relatives and witnesses. You are all so brave. x

Rob Riley on August 26, 2015 at 12:00 pm

We were on holiday at my sisters in Shoreham and went to the air show, myself my wife and our 2 children watched from the front line the tragedy happen, we are still in shock. We returned home to the Wirral early after leaving flowers on the bridge, the news vans everywhere and constant replays on the TV where to much, we can't imagine what it's like for those on the A27 who witnessed it and survived let alone the poor people who were sadly taken from this world. Our hearts and those of everyone I know from my area go out to the families and friends of people who have been tragically taken. Although we were stuck in our car on the airfield for 8 hours we think the emergency services did a great job and I'm sure saved others who could of also been lost. Thoughts are with everyone in Shoreham and we hope nothing like this ever happens again.

Mike Bennett on August 26, 2015 at 11:59 am

I have been to the Shoreham Air Show several times over the last few years sometimes paying to go in and sometimes standing outside. I had planned to go on Saturday and would have been standing right where the plane came down! At times like this it is difficult to understand why some of us have outrageous good fortune and others terrible bad luck. I wish I could wave a wand and bring all the victims back. I hope that the love being shown by everyone somehow helps the relatives to begin the never ending journey of coming to terms with their tragedy. x

I guess words of solace and comfort mean little at this time, to the relatives of those poor souls lost on that terrible day. But know that your loved ones will never be forgotten. God Bless to all affected, the Victims, their families and friends, and all the emergency services and others involved. JW

Clare mitchell on August 26, 2015 at 11:50 am

R.I.P to all that were lost on that awful day. Thoughts with all the families and friends of people that were taken and for those families still waiting for news, and thoughts for all involved and witnessed to this horrible tragedy and all emergency services you did a fantastic job on an awful day. Shoreham-by-sea will never be the same.xxx

Barry Halloren on August 26, 2015 at 11:49 am

Finding it hard to contemplate what it must be like for those who still don't know about loved ones, family, friends. There's still a strong sense of unreality about the whole thing, even as we all go about our daily lives in the Shoreham area. To those who have lost or who don't yet know, I hope you can find the strength and comfort you need from those around you and from us the wider community.

*My heart breaks for all the people involved!
Can't begin to imagine what the families are going through. Rest in peace angels.*

Helena Thorne on August 26, 2015 at 11:42 am

*My husband was at Shoreham on Saturday, he travels with his camera to so many displays.
We ourselves were involved in what could have been a potential crash on a passenger jet several years ago which was bad enough. However what those on the ground on the day and especially the families of those involved are going through now I cannot begin to imagine. All I can say is my heart goes out to all. And, a special thought also to those now on the ground involved in the recovery and investigation.*

Felicity Tomlinson on August 26, 2015 at 11:40 am

As I was driving towards Lancing on the A27 I witnessed this awful tragedy unfold in front of me. I have a lot of fond memories of Shoreham Airfield as I lived on the grounds of Lancing College as a child and would visit it often. I remember the Shoreham Air Show always being full of fun and excitement. However, this is not about me but for those who need to find solace in such a terrible thing. I really would like to offer my most heartfelt condolences to all those affected and I hope this sort of thing never happens again in my life time.

PMassey on August 26, 2015 at 11:39 am

*May all those who lost their lives, Rest in Peace.
May those who have lost loved ones, find solace. A tragically sad day. PM*

Thoughts and prayers with those who lost their lives, their families, and their communities.

Bruce & Shirley Baker-Johnson on August 26, 2015 at 11:37 am

We were there and after many hours we got home again. Hearts bleed for those who will never go home again. No words can ever be enough to describe the horror and grief of the bereaved. Only a legacy of somehow preventing anything similar happening again may ease things in time. Shoreham & RAFA we still love you.

Lindsay Wright on August 26, 2015 at 11:28 am

My husband and I send our love to all those who grieve and mourn the loss of someone they love as a result of the air crash at Shoreham on 22nd August 2015. Love never dies but grief is overwhelming. We also remember all those who have been injured physically and/or emotionally, particularly the children who witnessed the terrible event. Our thoughts and prayers will be with you all daily. I'm sure a permanent Memorial will be set up and all those wonderful people will then be remembered for generations to come. I used to live in Shoreham and I know the area around the airport and the A27 well. Peter and Lindsay Wright.

My thoughts are with those who lost friends and family members through this tragic accident and I hope those who are yet to be accounted for are safe and well. My parents used to live in Shoreham and I remember visiting the air show back in '07 when the other accident occurred. I understand how this has affected the community and I'm pleased that regulations have been swiftly changed in order to prevent such tragedies in the future.

Tom Coe on August 26, 2015 at 9:52 am

I'm struggling to comprehend all this to be honest, for me it highlights that life is so unfair sometimes. I knew Matt Grimstone and I can only echo what everyone has said, He was just a fantastic human being, I send my deepest thoughts to his family and friends and to the family and friends of all those taken before their time. Can I just say though that it is been so uplifting to see both the local, nation and football communities really rallying together in this time of hurt. Also big praise to the emergency services and to the people who acted and risked their lives to try and save people. The anguish of death hangs over and leads the human spirit to wonder about the mysteries of existence, man's destiny, life, the world. RIP – NEVER FORGOTTEN

Admiration for the emergency services.*

Kate Powell on August 26, 2015 at 9:16 am

I, like, everyone watched in horror at Saturday's tragic events and have not stopped thinking about all of those families affected ever since. I am a Mum and cannot comprehend the pain and devastation felt but I just want to pass on that my family and the whole of West Sussex is united in sending their deepest love and strength to all involved. Rest in peace to those lovely men sadly taken and as the days unfold, I send the strength to those families faced with more sad news. Amazing community support and huge thanks to all of the services that have helped, even in those small comforting ways. Human spirit and resolve is strong and holds no bounds. My deepest and sincerest sympathies from Chichester.

Cassie Williams on August 26, 2015 at 9:16 am

My thoughts are for all who have been affected by this tragic event. I was at the show with my mum, brother, husband and 6 year old and I know how terribly this has affected each of us. I am selfishly so pleased I got to go home with everyone I love so dearly. I can only commend the bravery of the people on the A27 and the emergency services that have and still are working tirelessly through such an awful situation. RIP We will never forget you and I only hope your families and friends find peace xXx

My thoughts and love is sent to all who have been affected by this terrible event

Claire (Jones) on August 26, 2015 at 9:12 am

Hard to know how to comfort the family after such an utterly horrifying weekend. Matt will forever be loved by you and so many others. Every ounce of strength, love and thought is with you at this traumatic time. For the wider group of friends and the local community, knowing the whole thing is such a gut wrenching experience, thoughts and compassion are with you too as we all comes to terms with what's happened in our own way. Love and much respect. x

Linda and Mike on August 26, 2015 at 9:12 am

Having driven past the airfield on the A27 hundreds of times, that journey will never be the same again. Heartbreaking tragedy for so many people, the lives that have been lost, the injuries sustained, the trauma for those involved in the recovery and rescue, the families involved, the community at large. Somehow we hope they will be able to come to terms with that fateful day, and emerge stronger for the ordeal, but that will take time and a huge amount of courage and support. God bless them.

My thoughts and prayers go to all that were affected by Saturday's tragedy. I know that words will not bring back your loved ones, but please find comfort that we are all here for you, from those that know you to those that don't. It has been so touching to see the Community has united as one, it has been such an amazing thing to see how people can come together and support each other, it's just a shame it had to be under such sad circumstances. My respect to all the emergency services that have worked so hard and with such sensitivity, our prayers are with you also as you continue your work to bring peace and closure to those families still waiting to hear news. And to those who are now with the angels, have fun up there, keep those smiles bright, and be assured that you will never be forgotten!! – RIP xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

I'm so sorry for all affected by this appalling tragedy. As a pilot myself, I can tell you that this is terribly upsetting. We focus so much on safety, it's core to ask we do, but clearly there needs to be a serious review to ensure that these circumstances in which innocent passers-by have been killed and injured can never recur. My heartfelt condolences to ask the families affected by this tragedy.

Cathy Glynn-Davies on August 26, 2015 at 8:23 am

So very shocked and saddened by events on 22nd August. Having worked for Northbrook College at Shoreham Airport, with Aero and Auto students, I understand the enthusiasm for Technology and how exciting and entertaining the Shoreham Airshow is, and how proud the community of Shoreham are of this unique event. So very, very sorry for the tragic loss of so many lives and heartfelt sympathy to the family and friends of these people, some of whom come from my own community in Worthing. Hoping time will heal and memories sustain you all.

Phil davie on August 26, 2015 at 8:22 am

My heartfelt sympathy to all who have lost loved ones in this terrible tragedy. I know there are many dark days to come for you, but I pray you will find strength, and hold your sweet memories close in your hearts. The emergency services have been incredible in what must be traumatic for them too. I am so, so sorry. May they all Rest In Peace xx

Kate and Dave Barber on August 26, 2015 at 7:45 am

We were watching the air show, with all our family, from the beach!!! It was a carnival atmosphere, everyone so happy, the weather was perfect!!!! THEN we watched as the plane went down, then immediately black smoke went in the sky. It was very obvious what had happened!!! Everyone went completely silence, after the atmosphere was so subdued!! When we got home and heard the major disaster, of innocent people doing their own everyday things, to be killed. All our thoughts and prayers are with all the families, whose lives have been changed forever, Big cuddles to you all, you will always be remembered xxx

*The footage from this day haunts me. Life is so fragile and we have once again been reminded of this in the most shocking and tragic way. I don't even have the words to express the sadness I feel. Rarely has the phrase "wrong place, wrong time" been more appropriate, literally down to the second in this case. We all use the roads and most of us have been to an airshow in our time, it could quite easily have been any one of us, or our families. I can't even begin to imagine what the family members, friends and witnesses of this awful, awful event are feeling. My prayers are with those who passed, and my thoughts are with their loved ones. I hope that the collective support of the entire country helps you to get through these dark times. Life really can be so unfair.

*Thinking of everyone affected by this dreadful tragedy. Those who have lost their life in such a dreadful way. Each day we learn of someone else we know of who was caught up in this and who has to find the strength to get through the horror of what they have witnessed or the injuries they have been left with. The community of both West and East Sussex are thinking of you all.
Love and prayers*

Francine Poole on August 25, 2015 at 6:18 pm

My heart goes out to the families who have lost their loved ones. Had we been 5 minutes later, myself, my 2 boys and my partner would have been where the crash took place. We had just turned off into the show. I know how much we are now going over and over what we saw. Grief is so personal – I have been thinking of the veterans who were at the show and how this incident could well have brought back traumatic memories, I've thought about those who may have been heading out for a day at the seaside, those who had spent so many days preparing for the show – the list could go on! We were lucky and our guardian angel must have been watching over us. I can't tell you how I feel for those who have lost people they knew and loved and for the pilot and his family. I will never forget xxx

I can't imagine what the families and friends of the people who have tragically been taken are going through. It's at times like this that remind you to never take the people around you or life in general for granted because you never know when things might change. Such a tragic incident which has shocked the world around us and we shall never forget. My thoughts are with you all. I'd like to also take this opportunity to express my utmost respect and thank all of the Sussex emergency services for their amazing strength and bravery for everything they are doing right now during this devastating time. Rest In Peace. Sincere condolences to everyone affected. Xx

Cllr Warren Morgan, Leader, Brighton and Hove City Council on August 25, 2015 at 3:07 pm

This was the most terrible day in Sussex in our lifetimes. My thoughts are with those who lost their lives, and their families and friends, colleagues and team mates who are living with the loss. We will all know someone touched by this tragedy, and we should all stand together in supporting them. I pay tribute to the work of the emergency services who responded to that most terrible of scenes, and those now engaged in dealing with the aftermath and investigation. They all deserve our thanks and support now and in the future. The city of Brighton and Hove shares in the pain of loss at this sad time.

Stephen Staples & Family on August 25, 2015 at 1:15 am

I was among those present at the Shoreham Airshow on August 22nd to witness the tragic accident, to say we are devastated by the events that unfolded would be an understatement. The crash and eerie hush that descended across the crowd will live with me forever. These things however pale into insignificance when compared to the far reaching effects on those who have lost family members or close friends, or were injured themselves as a result of the terrible incident. Myself and my family, both those present with me on the day, and others who were not there, but that feel equally touched by the tragedy extend our deepest heartfelt sympathies to those directly affected. No words can dampen your sorrow, but please know that you are in our thoughts.

*When you remember me
Please do not weep
My body may not be there
It has chosen to sleep*

*I'm not that far away
My soul lives on
Looking down, watching over
You and everyone*

*And when you feel sad
And life seems so blue
Just remember
That my spirit has its arms around you*

*And on those special days,
Times that you wish I could see,
That cool breeze flowing past you...
Well, that will be me*

*So don't be sad
Have no fear
God has taken me under his wing
But I'll always be near*

*I still watch you
Every minute, every day
My love and soul are with you
And that's where they will stay.*

*Shoreham residents- there will never be enough words to express one's feelings in a sad time like this. Our thoughts and prayers go out to all the families and friends of all those injured and those who lost their lives. May they all rest in peace Would also like to thank all those who risked their own lives trying to save others without any thought of their own well-being.
They must be considered heroes for without them more lives could have been lost.*

Sue on August 24, 2015 at 8:37 pm

*How can we forget the tragic day,
When many lives were taken away
Those that were killed on the A27,
Are safely resting in a place some call 'Heaven'.
Our hearts go out to those that grieve,
But your reminiscence of them will never leave.*

*Keep them safe and close to your heart,
As your precious memories can never depart.
Time may heal but we will never forget,
The terrible day that caused so much upset.
Thinking of those in their time of great pain,
Knowing things for you will never be the same.*

*We must remember too those that watched and cried,
Feeling helpless as they knew so many had died.
The emergency services too that were on the scene,
Working side by side in one great team.
They continue today with the terrible task,
Of uncovering more answers to questions that we ask.*

RIP

Sue Butler on August 24, 2015 at 7:34 pm

*Each given our life, to live and to breathe
Learning to love, be happy and grieve
A life precious given, for how long is not clear
So we must make it count, for it's precious and dear*

*Unfortunately this life can be taken, we go
How does God decide who, so hard we don't know
But in sadness and shock we will stand together
And remember these victims, our hearts touched forever*

*May you all rest in peace, such a tragedy, a blow
Those life's taken suddenly, passing by the air show.
To the family and loved ones, my words are not there
To make you feel better, but please know we care xx*

*Remember them when flowers bloom early in the spring,
Remember them on sunny days in the fun that summer brings,
Remember them in the fall as you walk through leaves of gold,
And remember them in the wintertime In the stories that are told,
But most of all remember them each day, right from the start
They will be forever near you for they live within your heart*

Thinking of everyone affected by this dreadful tragedy. RIP those who lost their lives – you will not be forgotten. To their families and friends – our sorrow for your loss is heartfelt – as it is for those who had to bear witness to the tragic events and to those who now carry out their professional duties dealing with the aftermath. You may not be able to see us, but there are many of us stood by your side who will be thinking of you and wishing that this had never occurred. It is surreal when this happens on your doorstep, at a place known so well, a place that will soon be re-visited during daily life. We will remember each and everyone of you xxx

Now in Boston, Massachusetts USA, but originally from Worthing. It is a shock when places so familiar to me make the national news here. My own mother and sister were at the display on Saturday and had to witness this tragedy. It pains me from so far away to hear of the awful events on the A27. My thoughts are with the families effected by this terrible event, and to the town of Worthing as a whole where my heart still considers it 'home'.

Jodie Kelley on August 24, 2015 at 6:13 pm

So very sad, I send my condolences to all the families and friends of those killed in this terrible accident. I hope that those injured get the best of care and get over their injuries – and that every single person affected gets the right help to overcome this trauma. A big thank you goes to all the Emergency Services who attended, they too will find it hard to deal with the aftermath. A fun day that turned to tragedy so quickly. R.I.P. to the victims. From a Sussex lass living in Durham.

michelle on August 24, 2015 at 4:47 pm

Having been to many air shows and knowing how much they are enjoyed, this tragedy brings much sadness that such a great family event ended this way. thoughts of course are with those that lost their lives in a horrific way and the family and friends they have left behind. admiration and respect to those emergency services and crane operators and others support services that helped the injured and are still helping in the aftermath and search operations, and also thoughts to those members of public that witnessed the plane come down and for those who though not their job found the courage and bravery to leave there vehicles and help the injured and comfort the shocked whilst emergency services were on route. No words can sum this up. God bless you all

Massive shock for all of us at the show at this most tragic of accidents. The silence screamed everyone's emotion for the Andrews well being, when someone mentioned that the A27 was in that area, everyone emotions increased to levels beyond belief. All our hearts go out to all friends and relatives of all involved in this horrific incident. Our sympathy also go out to people who witnessed the event unfold. May God bless all.

Mr Richard A Morey (Chmn), Royal Air Forces Association 417 Isle of Wight.

*I didn't personally know any of you, but that doesn't mean I don't care.
I am heartbroken for all involved. You were all taken too soon. Too many lives gone to waste.
My thoughts and sympathies, always xx*

*If tears could build a stairway
And memories a lane
I'd walk back up to heaven
And bring you back again....
But there are no steps to heaven
I can't walk down that lane
I guess, in time, I'll come to accept, things will never be the same x*
